MRS. ROGERS HANGED THIS AFTERNOON IN VERMONT FOR MURDER OF HUSBAND

Trap Sprung at 1:14 and Woman is Pro- nounced Dead in Fourteen Minutes

SHE MADE NO CONFESSION BUT BELIEVED HER SINS FORGIVEN

Two Hundred Telegrams Received by Governor Bell This Morning Urging Him to Show Mercy--Ohio Women's Appeal--Story of Crime for Which Mary Rogers Paid Penalty.

Windsor, Vt., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Mary Rogers was hanged this afternoon at 1:14 o'clock for the brutal murder of her husband. The woman was pronounced dead just 14 minutes later.

The form of Mrs. Rogers was enshrouded in a sack, a cap was pulled on her face, the noose was adjusted, and Supt. Lovell, pressed a spring with his foot. The trap fell with a snap and there was no hitch in the execution.

The authorities say Mrs. Rogers made no confession. She appeared to believe that her sins are forgiven and that she would be saved.

HALF COLLAPSED

As She Turned With Tearless Eyes
When Told of the Governor's Final Decision.

Windsor, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Rogers received the news of Governor Bell's final decision through Superintendent Lovell. The woman clung to her cell door bars as the last remaining hope fled from her breast and then turned with tearless eyes and half collapsed on a cot. Father Delaney came later. He prayed for many minutes and administered the last sacraments of the church to the condemned woman.

OHIO PETITION

Ignored by Governor Bell Who Holds
That Woman Must Hang—Last Appeal Vain.

White River Junction, Vt., Dec. 8.—Governor Bell says Mrs. Rogers must hang. The governor after listening to the last plea of lawyer Flinn, said that the woman must be executed. "Public sentiment is against you," said Governor Bell, "and the law must take its course."

Miss Jesse M. Parton, of the Cincinnati Post, who this morning presented Governor Bell with a petition signed by 30,000 women of Ohio asking him to reprieve Mrs. Rogers, exclaimed, when she heard the Governor's decision: "My God, Governor, is it possible that you can ignore the petition of these thirty thousand women?" The governor sadly shook his head and all knew that Mrs. Rogers would hang before the close of the day.

THE FINAL APPEALS.

White River Junction, Vt., Dec. 8.—A final effort to save Mrs. Rogers was made this morning. Affidavits were presented to the governor to show evidence of insanity. Over 200 telegrams, some of great length, from various parts of the country, were received by Bell.

PREPARATIONS

Completed This Morning for Woman's Hanging—All Arrangements Carefully Made.

Windsor, Vt., Dec. 8.—Preparations for the death of Mrs. Mary Rogers were completed at the state prison this morning. Supt. Wilson S. Lovell and Sheriff Peck went into the enclosed court within the prison walls and made a careful inspection of the gallows. The noose was examined to ascertain if the knotted coil would slip freely over the hempen strands and the black sack was spread out on the gallows floor with the black cap near. The form of Mrs. Rogers was enshrouded in the sack, and after the cap was pulled down over the face the noose was adjusted. The trap was sprung from below by the pressure of the foot.

Shortly before one o'clock Mrs. Durkee went to Mrs. Rogers' cell and dressed her for the execution. The woman wore a combination black dress of waist and skirt made for the execution last June. Mrs. Rogers wore no corset or collar.

When the six deputy sheriffs who formed the death procession came she left her cell with Matron Durkee, who accompanied her from her cell to the guard room. As Mrs. Rogers left the guard room to walk down a short flight of steps to the enclosed court she saw for the first time the instrument of her death. It is a walk of 40 feet or more to the gallows steps. When the woman reached the gallows floor a deputy tied her hands. The black sack and the cap were drawn about her. There was a signal to a deputy below and the trap was sprung. The prison physician, Dr. Dean Richmond, pronounced the woman dead at 1:28 this afternoon. The witnesses then formed a semi-circle round the gallows and filed out into the guard room. The body was then cut down and turned over to an undertaker. No relatives or friends of Mrs. Rogers witnessed the execution. There were only the prison officials, the sheriff and his deputies, counsel for the woman, state witnesses, and the representatives of the press associations present. The body of Mrs. Rogers will be shipped to Woosick Falls, N. Y., where she will be buried in the family plot.

PLEA FOR MERCY

Made by Jessie Parton on Behalf of Ohio Women Had No Effect on Governor.

(By Jessie M. Parton.)
White River Junction, Vt., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Rogers will hang at 1:30 p. m. today. Governor Bell of Vermont, so decrees. A woman's life must be taken ignominiously that the letter of the law be fulfilled. Cold and hard as the granite hills of his native state Governor Bell listened to my appeal on behalf of the people of Ohio in the parlor of the Junction House, where he also heard the last plea of the condemned woman's attorneys, R. B. Flinn and Chas. McCarthy. The petitions from 42,000 Ohio people who believe justice would be best served in this case by mercy were poured out at his feet.

All those present stood with bowed heads, as I pleaded with him, not for justice, but mercy. The picture of poor, weak-minded Mary Rogers, biting her nails in dumb anguish in the death cell 20 miles away, waiting the fatal hour, came vividly to each one of us.

"Mercy, your excellency," I whispered at the close of the plea. "In the name of 50,000 Ohio people I ask a reprieve for Mary Rogers."

He smiled inscrutably. "What do the people of Ohio know about this case?" he asked. "How are they concerned with the laws of Vermont?" "They know better, perhaps," I answered, "the laws of humanity."

They feel strongly the blot this execution will be on the fair name of our nation."

With firm set jaw and sternly uplifted finger, he retorted: "As chief executive of Vermont, I have tried, and shall always try, to execute the laws of Vermont. I consider that Mary Rogers has had, not only justice, but mercy as well. Every opportunity has been given her counsel to produce new evidence, they have not done so. Any further delay would make both myself and the courts of Vermont ridiculous. Mary Rogers must die."

Charles McCarthy, attorney for the defense, made an impassioned appeal for a reprieve. White foam flecked his lips and the veins in his forehead stood out like whipcords as he realized his futility. He has given his own money to work up the case and has received no fee.

Attorney Flinn who will be a candidate in 1906 for the state senate from the second district, from which Bell will be a candidate for Congress, has gone over to the opposition at the last moment, and made a speech praising the governor's act. He also criticised the Ohio people severely for "butting in."

HER LAST DAY

Mrs. Rogers Approaching Execution
Cast Depressing Influence Over the Village.

Windsor, Vt., Dec. 8.—Racked by her own conflicting emotions, Mrs. Mary Rogers arose from her sleepless cot this morning to live through the few wretched hours of life and meet her death before the day is near done on the gallows in the state prison here. Pallid from fear which clutches at her heart at last she left her cot and half reeled to the cell door, where she watched the first gray tints of morning creep through the barred windows at the end of the corridor. As the shadows fell more lightly on the white walls and the corridor began to fill with light the woman knew the final day had come. A half sob, a catch of breath it might have been escaped from her and she turned and placed her hands in those of the matron who had come to the cell early to be with her when roused from a troubled sleep.

No tears filled her eyes. She had wept early in the night but the truth of her hopeless end had come to her at last and burnt deep itself into her soul, leaving her but a poor miserable thing for the execution of the law.

She turned to Mrs. Loukes, the matron, and began to sob. It was the first emotion she had shown since she bade her mother farewell last Saturday. Father Delaney was sent for. Supt. Lovell feared there might be a sudden collapse. The priest came and went to the woman's cell. Mrs. Rogers brushed the tears from her eyes and spoke a quiet greeting to him. The good priest spoke kindly words of comfort to her and she made reply, but her words could not be heard. As the matron retired to a far corner of the cell the priest and the woman sank to their knees and prayed.

Mrs. Rogers grew calmer and Father Delaney left the cell and went to the guard room where he was within call. The woman spoke to the prison matron of the coming day and told her she was ready to meet her death.

"I know it must be and I am prepared to die," she said and then added plaintively, "You do not think they will hurt me, do you?" Mrs. Rogers relapsed into moody thought and near midnight she spoke of the wooden thing in the court below, what it looked like. Was it very high and there were many steps to the gallows floor? All these questions showed the thoughts that filled her fevered mind. She shook and trembled violently and the fear seemed to grow on her that she would be hurt on the gallows. Tortured with this fear until a physical exhaustion came, she fell half dressed on her cot into a troubled sleep. She woke at the dawn and inquired the time of the matron. Then she waited at the cell door the coming of the day.

The miserable business of the day has cast a depressing influence over the village.

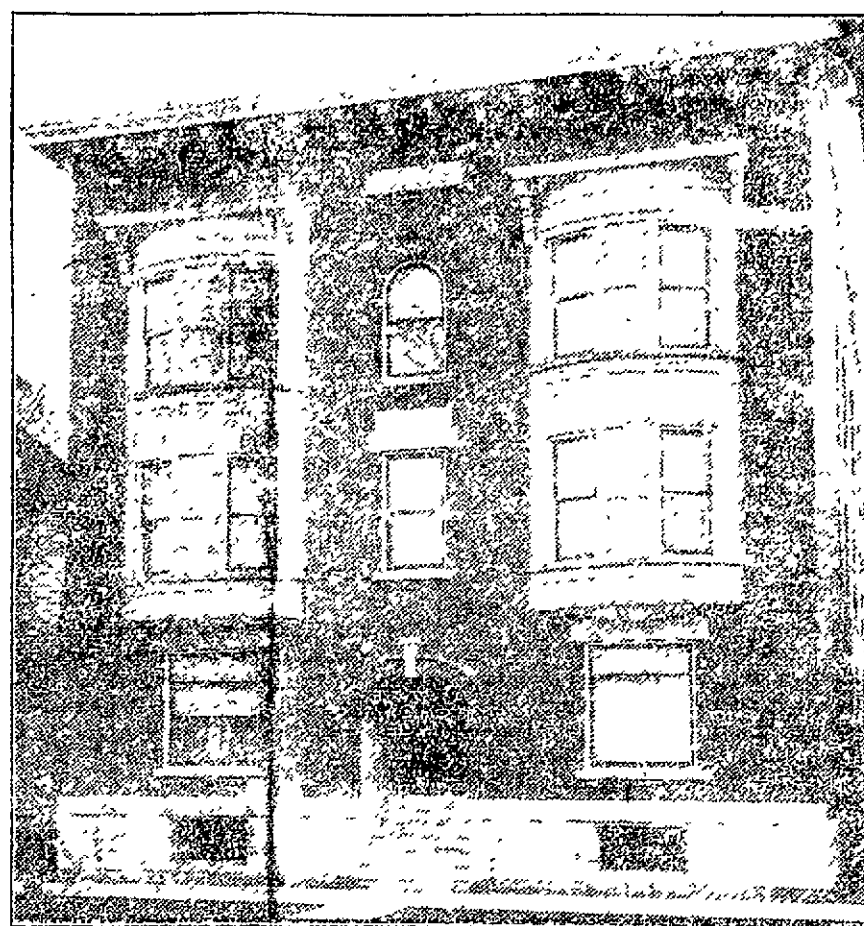

Governor Bell read 65 letters this morning in behalf of Mrs. Rogers. Only one was written by a Vermont resident.

DR. JUDSON LEWIS' FINE "JUTLEW" APARTMENT HOUSE

The above illustration represents the new Jutlew apartment house on Locust street. These apartments built by Fristoe & Son, contractors, J. P. Taylor, architect, of Zanesville, for Dr. J. T. Lewis, of this city, are the very finest, considering the conveniences, the size of the rooms, and the arrangement for light and air. This elegant building has only six apartments, four with five rooms, and two with six, a private hall, bath and pantry in each apartment, also a laundry and storage room in the basement for each apartment. The floors are all of polished hardwood, and are double, containing a heavy felt lining between. All of the rooms are finished in golden oak except the dining rooms, which are finished as weathered oak. The new building has a magnificent entrance all of white marble. The halls are lighted with electricity and gas, and heated with gas. Hot water is supplied for bath, heating and cooking. The building has complete janitor service, speaking tubes, electric bells, and an electric lock on the front door which can be operated from each suite. In fact every convenience is to be found in this modern, costly building. Dr. Lewis' handsome building was recently completed and is now occupied.

WILD WEST HORSES

Buffalo Bill Takes Radical Steps

Marshall, Dec. 8.—All the horses belonging to the Wild West show of Colonel Wm. F. Cody were killed here yesterday. Although the government veterinarians had asserted that the glanders had been entirely eliminated, Colonel Cody and his partner, James A. Bailey, decided on this radical measure in order to allay the fears of the farmers regarding the spread of the disease.

The saddles, bridles and other articles of the equipment, as well as the clothing of the stablemen, were also burned and the railroad cars belonging to the show disinfected. Colonel Cody is now in the United States engaged in purchasing fine horses.

SUPREME JUDGES

Appeared on Bench This Morning In Robes for First Time in History of Ohio.

Columbus, Dec. 8.—Six justices of the Ohio Supreme court this morning appeared on the bench in robes and hereafter they will be worn each time court ascends the bench. This is the first time robes have been worn by judges in the history of the judiciary of Ohio and the innovation came as a surprise. The robes were adopted out of deference to a resolution passed by the State Bar association at its meeting last summer. The general comment is complimentary of the innovation and an agreed it added new dignity to the Supreme court of Ohio. The robes are made of black silk and are worn by the judges in the same manner as the robes worn by the judges in the United States supreme court.

CZAR TEARS WITTE'S RESIGNATION INTO MANY BITS AND COMMANDS PREMIER TO REMAIN IN OFFICE

Financial Crash is Apparently Beginning in Russia--Three Banks Suspend and Money Situation Grows More Grave Each Hour in the Empire.

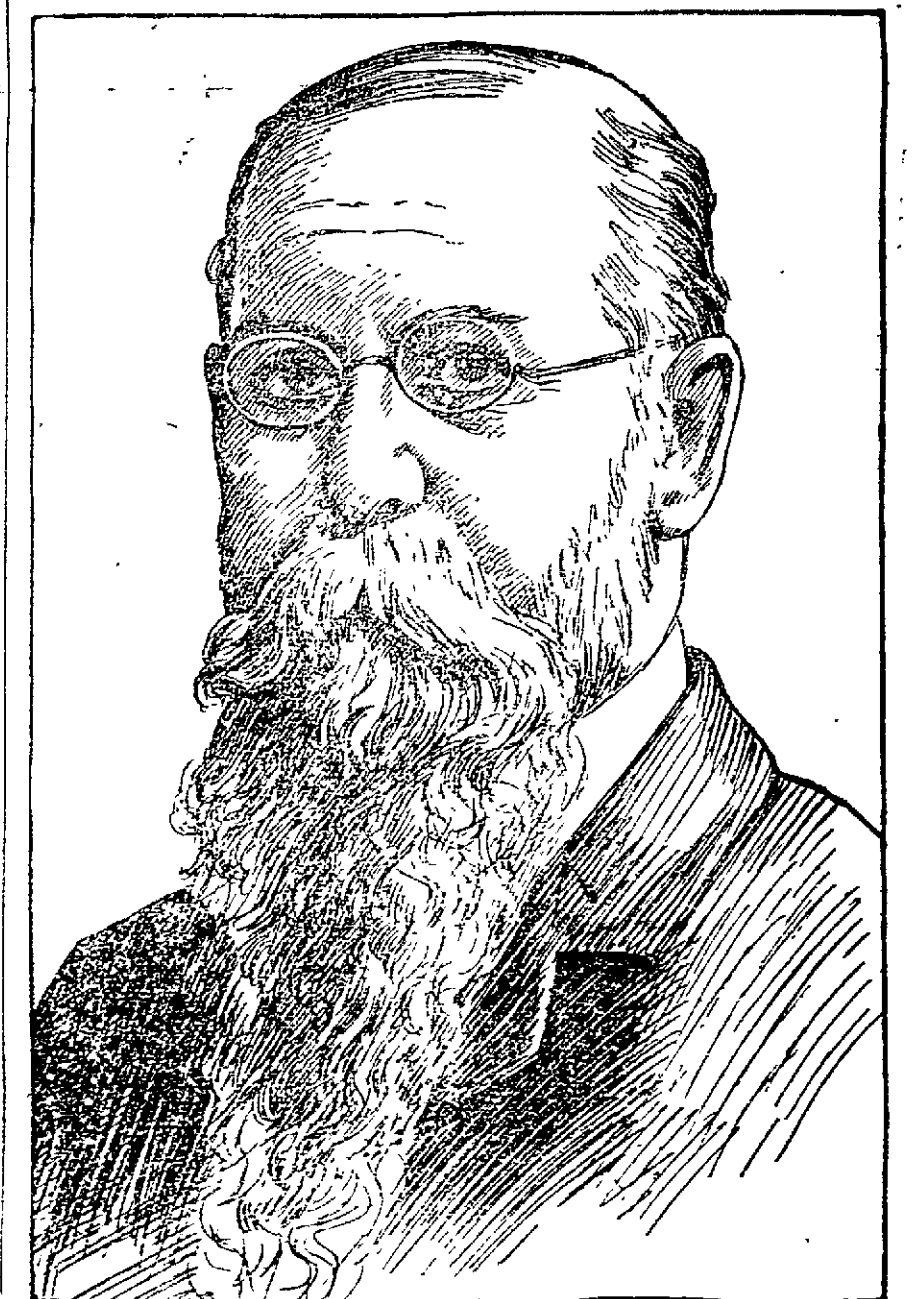

ST. PETERSBURG, Thursday, via Eydtkuhnen, Dec. 8.—Dissatisfied with the treatment at the hands of his imperial master and apparently feeling it was beyond his power to restore tranquil conditions throughout the empire, Count Witte handed the czar his resignation and a sensational scene ensued. The czar after reading the document through, tore it into a hundred pieces and flung them at Witte's feet, exclaiming angrily: "Are you such a poor patriot as to desert me in this hour of misfortune? Remain in office until I see fit to relieve you." The emperor then turned sharply on his heel and left Count Witte standing in the middle of the reception chamber.

FINANCIAL CRASH IN RUSSIA BEGINS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Thursday, via Eydtkuhnen, Dec. 8.—The financial crash which must inevitably overtake the country is apparently beginning. Three small banks here have suspended payment, unable to meet the run started on them. Many cases of bankruptcy of industrial firms are reported from the provinces. The money situation is growing graver every hour. The people are now refusing to pay taxes, declaring the government has no right to the people's money until it proves willing to do what the people want. Many officials believe the government will be unable to pay salaries at the end of the month.

WILL THE ADDITIONAL BOND ISSUE BE LEGAL?

Has Newark City the Power to Issue $200,000 More Water Works Bonds?

Decision of Circuit Court on the Law Limiting the Bonded Indebtedness of Cities to 8 Per Cent of Total Taxable Valuation.

Section 2837 of the Revised Statutes which authorizes municipal corporations to issue bonds for public improvements, contains the following proviso:

Provided, however, that no township, hamlet, or municipal corporation shall hereafter create or assume an aggregate indebtedness of outstanding and unpaid bonds under the authority of this act in excess of eight per cent. of the total value of all property in such township, hamlet, or municipal corporation as listed and assessed for taxation.

This proviso limiting the amount of municipal bonds to 8 per cent. of the taxable valuation of the city has caused discussion among lawyers and others of our citizens as to whether Newark has the legal power to issue the $200,000 additional water works bonds as called for in the proposition which is to be submitted to a vote of the people on the 11th inst.

The decision of the Circuit Court at Tiffin on the question of this limitation to 8 per cent. of a city's duplicate valuation is, therefore, of special interest, and is given below in full.

The total valuation of the city of Newark is $7,946,000, and 8 per cent. of that sum amounts to $635,680.

The annual report of the city auditor for January 1, 1905, shows the total bonded indebtedness of the city of Newark amounted on that date to $545,758.

Of this indebtedness the total sum of $80,501 was for special improvement bonds, which deducted, leaves the total bonded indebtedness of the city for general purposes on January 1, 1905, the sum of $465,257.

Since that time the sum of $5,000 of general fund bonds has been paid and $15,000 of additional electric light bonds have been issued, thus increasing the total to $475,257.

To this must be added the authorized City Hospital bonds, amounting to $35,000, which brings up the city's bonded indebtedness for general purposes to the total sum of $510,257.

Deducting the present total indebtedness of $510,257 from $635,680, the total of the 8 per cent limitation on the city's taxable valuation, leaves a balance of only $125,423.

The following is the decision in full of the Circuit court on the question, which is given in the last monthly Law Bulletin:

(Circuit Court of Seneca County.)
Wellington J. Griffith et al. vs. The City of Tiffin et al.

Municipal Corporations—Statutes Construed Relating to Bonding Power—Limit of Bonding Capacity—How Ascertained—Exemption of Bonds to be Paid by Special Assessments.

1. The bonding power of a municipal corporation under Sections 2835, 2835b and 2837, revised Statutes of Ohio, is fixed at the extreme limit of eight per cent. of all the taxable property listed for taxation, in such corporations. This, however, does not include bonds to be paid by special assessments upon abutting property.

2. In determining whether a municipal corporation has reached or exceeded the limit of its bonding capacity, the statute contemplates the aggregate bonded indebtedness whether issued before or since said enactments, and if such aggregate equals or exceeds the extreme eight per cent. limit above noted, then no further bonds may be issued until said aggregate has been reduced below said limit.

Voith, J.; Norris, J., and Hurin, J. concur.

The plaintiff in error filed his petition in the lower court setting forth twelve separate causes of action and seeking to restrain the payment of cause of action.

The first eleven causes of action bonds of the city of Tiffin heretofore issued and to be issued, and designated as the Greenfield Street Paving Bonds—the latter being the subject of the twelfth described and set forth successive bond issues of said city, indicating the purpose for which issued, as well as their respective amounts, and contain averments with reference to the manner of issuing the same tending to support the charge that said issues of bonds so described were illegal made. The aggregate sum of the bonds so issued as described in these eleven causes of action is $625,000. The amount of bonds sought to be issued as set forth in the twelfth cause of action and known as the Greenfield Street Paving Bonds is $13,000. It further appears from the petition and in the first eleven causes of action, as well as in said twelfth cause of action, that the total taxable value of all property listed for taxation in said city of Tiffin is $4,000,600 and no more.

The facts thus set forth indicate that the city of Tiffin has at present a total bonded indebtedness amounting to a fraction more than 15 per cent. of the taxable value of all property in said city listed for taxation.

A general demurrer was interposed by the city to this petition and the demurrer was sustained by the lower court. Error is prosecuted here to reverse this action of the Common Pleas court.

The demurrer in question was general in its terms.

After said demurrer was sustained as aforesaid by the court of Common Pleas, upon application to the judges of this court at chambers, a temporary restraining order was granted restraining the sale of the Greenfield Street Paving Bonds until the issues raised herein by the petition in error are finally determined.

The purpose for which municipal corporations may issue bonds are recited in Section 2835 of the Revised Statutes and include the object contemplated by the issue under consideration.

Said Section 2835 further provides that such bonds shall not exceed one per cent. of the total taxable property of the corporation in any one year unless authorized by an affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of all the members of council elected or appointed thereto, and then the aggregate amount of all such bonds hereafter issued under the authority of said act shall not exceed four per cent. of such taxable property—unless a greater amount be authorized by a vote of the electors of the corporation in accordance with the provisions of Section 2837, Revised Statutes.

Section 2835b, as enacted April 25, 1904 (97 Ohio Laws 520), qualifies the above as follows:

"Provided, further, that the limitations of one per cent. and four per cent., prescribed in Section 2835, Revised Statutes, shall not be construed as affecting bonds issued under authority of said Section 2835, upon the approval of the electors of the corporation; nor shall bonds which are to be paid for by assessments specially levied upon abutting property, be deemed as subject to the provisions of said section."

Upon a comparison with the original Section 2835, this supplementary section seems to do nothing more than eliminate the required two-thirds vote of the council in cases where an issue is actually authorized by a vote of the people, but it applies merely to 2835 and the limitations of one per cent. and four per cent. therein contained, and in no wise affects the provisions of Section 2837.

Section 2837 as amended April 25, 1904 (97 Ohio Laws, 190), provides that the aggregate issue of four per cent. bonds authorized in Section 2835, may be exceeded when authorized by the affirmative action of two-thirds of the council, supported by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the voters voting at an election duly called for that purpose.

It will be noted that the excess over four per cent. requires a two-thirds vote of the electors voting at such election, while for the lesser aggregate authorized by Section 2835 a bare majority seems sufficient.

Section 2837 further provides as follows:

"Provided, however, that no municipal corporation shall hereafter create or assume an aggregate indebtedness of outstanding and unpaid bonds under the authority of this act, in excess of eight per cent. of the total value of all property in such municipal corporation as listed and assessed for taxation."

The word "assume" as used above is peculiar to Section 2837. It is not found in Section 2835. It is evidently inserted there for a purpose. What does it mean? It can not mean to create a new debt, for it is used in the alternative with the word "create", to-wit, "create or assume." It may not mean to adopt or take up the debt of some other person or corporation, for that does not come within the scope of the powers conferred upon municipalities by law. It must, therefore, if it means anything, have reference only to the indebtedness of the corporation itself existing prior to the enactment of the eight per cent. limitation.

The proviso at the close of said Section 2837, "that in cases where council of any municipal corporation, has heretofore passed a resolution or ordinance declaring it necessary to issue and sell bonds, etc., for any of the purposes authorized by law, the provisions of this act limiting the aggregate amount of bonds to be issued, shall not be construed to apply to bonds provided for in such resolution or ordinance," does not apply to the case at bar. That proviso seems to have reference to contemplated issues of bonds not yet issued at the date of said act, but provided for by resolutions prior to said enactment of April 25, 1904, and seeks to prevent such contemplated issues from becoming illegal even though excessive in amount, and invites the suspicion that it was enacted to meet a special case. While, however, such previous contemplated issues do not become illegal by reason of their antagonism to existing law, yet there is nothing in the act, properly construed, to prevent their being included in a computation to determine whether a corporation has not reached, or exceeded, the extreme limit of its bonded power.

In view of the conclusions above noted, we hold that the bonding power of a municipal corporation in the state of Ohio is, by the above acts, fixed at the extreme limit of eight per cent. of all the taxable property listed in such corporation; that in determining whether a municipal corporation has reached or exceeded the extreme limit of its bonding capacity as above noted, all issues of bonds made by such corporation, previous to said enactment, as well as those subsequently made, and remaining unpaid, must be considered, in other words, the statute contemplates the aggregate bonded indebtedness of a municipal corporation whether issued before or since said enactment, and if such aggregate bonded indebtedness equals the extreme eight per cent. limit above noted then no further bonds may be issued by said municipal corporation until said aggregate has been so far reduced as to place the contemplated issue within the limit prescribed, and it is only proper to add that within said limitation all the requirements of the statutes must be strictly followed.

It is evident from the averments of the twelfth cause of action that the present aggregate bonded indebtedness of the city of Tiffin is far in excess of the extreme eight per cent. limit permitted by law; that the contemplated issue of $13,000 of Greenfield Street Paving Bonds as therein set forth would be far in excess of said extreme limit of eight per cent. above described and, upon the averments of the petition, the same would, therefore, be improper and illegal.

LAST KISS GIVEN

To Her Lover by Young Girl When Father Shot Both—Injuries Are Fatal.

Carlville, Ill., Dec. 8.—At Shipman, near here, Jacob Beltz shot and fatally wounded his daughter, Josie, aged 15, and her lover, Sam Miller, a butcher.

Two years ago Josie left town. It is alleged, in company with Miller. She returned home some time afterward. Miller was indicted for abduction. He left again and later gave himself up, and was put under $1000 bond.

Miller, it is said, has been a regular nightly caller at the Beltz home since his return, and Beltz was greatly incensed against him. Last Friday evening he waited a long time with a revolver for Miller to come out of Mrs. Beltz's home, but Miller escaped him.

Beltz heard a neighbor say that his wife and daughters were going to Alton on the early train Wednesday morning to buy some dress goods. He arose at 3 a. m. and went to the home of his wife, believing Miller would be there to bid them good-by. Through a window Beltz saw Miller in the house, and he waited for him to come out. Finally the door opened, and he saw Miller and Josie in each other's arms in the half open door.

They were in the act of kissing when Beltz fired the first shot. This struck his daughter in the side, breast and head, badly wounding her, and she fell. The other load in the gun was then fired at Miller, who exclaimed: "I am shot!" and ran. Most of the bullets of the second charge entered the door post.

Beltz gave himself up to the village constable, who held him in jail until the arrival of Sheriff O'Neill, when he was brought to Carlville and lodged in jail.

ALL STAR TEAM IS REORGANIZED

HOMER JONES WITHDRAWS AND CHARLES DEARDURFF TAKES PLACE.

Selbach's Team of Columbus May be Played by All Stars in the Near Future.

The Hayes All-Star team has been reorganized. The personnel of the team is the same with the exception of Homer Jones, who has quit the team. In his place Charles Deardurff, a well known bowler of this city, has been secured. Those now on the team are Captain Noel Armstrong, John Kates, Ira Peterman, Charles Deardurff and Frank Jones.

Games are now scheduled with Co-shoot and Zanesville, both being booked for next week, the dates not yet being set. After these games are played, Mt. Vernon will be in order and the Columbus field will again be invaded. Though no effort has yet been made, the famous Selbach team of Columbus will no doubt be opponents for the All Stars before many weeks have passed.

MAKE COACHES SIT WITH SUBS ON BENCH

These Instructors Use Foul Means to Further Chances of Their Teams to Win.

"The football rules committee should frame a law that would require the coaches of any team to take a seat on the bench with the subs and remain there throughout the game," says a man who saw the various coaches do a lot of illegal work this year.

"It has come to a point where an umpire, when time is out, is forced to hover over the waterboy or the trainer that comes on the field. Often it happens that an end will sneak away to the side lines and get loaded up with advice."

"We hear so much said about how the rules of football should be obeyed. Coaches and other officials are the first to break them and so open a breach for the players to do wrong things."

"Eligibility rules are framed up, it seems to me, just to be broken. Every effort will be made to inspect an opposing team and at the same time a fight will be going on for the athletic life of every man on the home squad. "It is high time that these professors, who are entrusted with eligibility cases, be men who are large enough to forget to be partisan. Perhaps two of the six members of the Ohio conference are of this type. Steps should be taken at once to have the entire board composed of men who can pass on a case as an impartial judge."

Wednesday. The coroner's verdict was that he died of hemorrhage. Mr. Watts had been gone about a month and was thought to have been in California. He was single and one of the most highly educated men in Kentucky. His estate is valued at $30,000. Last week attorney T. E. Butler of Smithland died in Denver. Both men were bosom friends. Butler was the Democratic nominee for County Attorney and had to decline on account of ill health. Later Watts ran and was defeated.

FACULTY FIVE.

Will Play the High School Team on Next Wednesday—Prof. Simkins to Star.

The greatest basketball game of the season of '05-'06 will be played next Wednesday night when the local High School faculty with Prof. Simkins and Prof. Nussbaum as members, will play the team representing the school. Arrangements are being made to accommodate a mammoth crowd as the proceeds will be used in liquidating the debt of the athletic association accrued during the football season.

Prof. Bookman, Prof. Tait and Prof. Sanger will probably be the other members of the faculty team and they are practicing hard to get in readiness for the game. It is intimated that the lady members of the faculty will be called upon to substitute on the team in case all the gentlemen are compelled to retire. Prof. Bookman has the faculty team in charge and is putting them through their paces in such a manner that they are really over confident of the results of the game.

FIRST BASKET BALL

Game Will be Played at Granville Tonight Between Newark H. S. and Denison.

The Newark High school basketball team will start the season tonight by playing the Denison university five at Granville. The local bunch is fast and each member of the team has entered with the proper spirit to make a successful run this season. At Granville the best team yet produced will represent the school. Nearly every member of the team has played on the first football eleven this fall. All are in splendid condition for the game.

The Denison team will line up probably as follows: Shoop, center; Weber and Moore or Adair, guards; Pine and Livingston forwards. This gives two Newark boys places on the team, Harry Pine and Lee Moore. Prof. C. M. Bookman will be one of the officials.

BOA CONSTRICTOR

Three Feet Long Was Asleep in the Bunch of Bananas at Carmi, Illinois.

Carmi, Ill., Dec. 8.—While unpacking a bunch of bananas, J. G. Thomas, a merchant at Tunnelsville, a little station south of here, found a young boa constrictor. The reptile was about three feet in length, and was in a comatose condition. Thomas threw the bananas away but kept the snake.

Withoi's Offer Rejected.
Cologne, Prussia, Dec. 8.—It is stated that Hendrik Withoi, the Hot-tent leader, who recently succumbed to wounds received while attacking a German provision train Oct. 29, just before his death offered as peace conditions that his men be allowed to keep their rifles, that they be supplied 150 rounds of ammunition monthly, their land and cattle be restored to them, and that his own pay as an officer of German colonial troops be doubled. These terms were rejected.

Porto Rico's Needs.
Washington, Dec. 8.—Beekman Winthrop, governor of Porto Rico, is in Washington conferring with officials in the interest of Porto Rico's needs. Among other things, the governor is anxious to have a small duty imposed by this government on the coffee coming into the United States from foreign countries for the benefit which he says would accrue to the coffee industry in Porto Rico.

Monument Unveiled.
Andersonville, Ga., Dec. 8.—The monument erected here in memory of the soldiers from Pennsylvania who died in the civil war has been unveiled. Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania, accompanied by his official staff and a party of distinguished Pennsylvanians, participated in the ceremonies, which were presided by Colonel James D. Walker, commander-in-chief of the national association of Union ex-prisoners of war.

Mrs. Thyrza Beckwith Gray, who won distinction as a writer of verse, died recently at the age of 102 at Oswego, N. Y. Much of her published work was accomplished after she had reached the century mark.

W. R. U. ATHLETICS SAID TO BE DIRTY

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION IS SUED FOR ALLEGED CROOKEDNESS.

Will "Big Six" be Expanded to Include Wittenberg and Other Colleges.

Western Reserve football officials are now on the rack. C. J. Saffinsky has let out a roar over $75, which he claims was promised him for playing football at Western Reserve university, and which, he says, he has not been paid.

Saffinsky has gone into the civil courts to obtain what he says is due him, and his action thus puts the football managers there in a bad light.

Of course, the officials deny that the young fellow has any ground for a claim. They say he was tried out and failed to make good. They say that $25, which Saffinsky did get, was on a loan.

The following dispatch from Cleveland fully explains the case: "Charging that he was to be paid $100 for playing football with the team of Western Reserve university and that the agreement, then disregarded, Cleveland J. Saffinsky has sued the Western Reserve Athletic association and Ed Kneen, the graduate manager."

"Saffinsky, who is a very large young man, had been attending the Cleveland Law school, and he says in his suit, that he was promised $100 if he would leave that institution and attend Western Reserve, where he could play center on the football team. "Saffinsky says he was given $25 but was taken off the team after a few weeks, and now he wants the rest of that hundred."

"The officers of the Athletic association say no agreement was made with Saffinsky; that he was tried out and did not make good on the team, and that the $25 he secured was borrowed money."

Case was put under a cloud by "Peggy" Parrott's recent action. Now that Reserve's dirty linen is about to be washed, some people are likely to point their fingers at the Cleveland code of honor in athletics.

It would be better for all hands to keep still, says the Ohio State Journal. This thing of throwing stones is dangerous business for those who live in glass houses. And there are more than two such structures outside of Cleveland, but still in Ohio.

A story floats in from Springfield to the effect that an invitation has been tendered Wittenberg's Athletic association to send a representative to the next Big Six meet.

It is claimed that this honor is the result of Wittenberg's good showing in football this fall. If this surmise is true, Wooster, Cincinnati and Denison should get similar invitations. If there is to be an expansion, the new organization should be known as the "Big Ten."

However, it is likely that present members of the conference will be very much anti-expansion when the time to act comes.

MRS. ROGERS HANGED

Ohio penitentiary, which is now the official shambles of the state. It was made so in 1885, and while many men have died hanging from a rope or were shocked into eternity by the electric current, the dread sentence was never carried out upon a woman, although twice ordered.

"In 1880 Elizabeth Carter, alias 'Big Liz' a gigantic negress, was received under death sentence from Cincinnati for poisoning her paramour, William Taylor. Governor Campbell commuted her sentence to life imprisonment and she was later released.

Mrs. Mary Garrett, of Spencer, was doomed to die on Jan. 1, 1889, for the murder of two imbecile stepdaughters, whose bodies she tried to destroy by setting fire to the house in which they lay. Her sentence was commuted by Governor Foraker.

The most old prison records show that one of the inmates, a woman, was hanged on February 9, 1844, but the sentence was carried into execution outside the walls and at the hands of the county authorities. The victim, Esther Foster, was colored and was convicted of killing a fellow inmate, a white woman. At the same time there was executed William Graham, who had killed Cyrus Sel's, a penitentiary guard. They went through the trap together. The Foster woman was not mentally bright and the chronicles of those days tell that she sold her body to a surgeon for all the candy she could eat from the time of the making of the bargain until she was hanged.

She was the only woman ever executed in the county, and it was the first judicial hanging that took place here.

HERRICK IS BLAMED.
Columbus, O., Dec. 8.—"This reminds me so much of the campaign," said Governor Myron T. Herrick, as he finished reading a personal letter from a woman living in the northern part of the state. This good soul took him severely to task for his brutal refusal to pardon Mrs. Mary Rogers. The writer was under the impression that Mrs. Rogers was in the penitentiary here and that Governor Herrick had obdurately refused all pleas for clemency. "It certainly sounds familiar," he added as he dropped the letter into the basket.

HISTORY OF CRIME

Story of Brutal Murder for Which Mrs. Rogers Paid the Penalty in Vermont Today.

Windsor, Vt., Dec. 8.—Every ingenious device, known in law, was used to save Mary Rogers from the gibbet, and it was not until the case was disposed of by the Supreme court of the United States late last month that all hope was given up of saving the woman's life. Had there been one mitigating circumstance, had there been one spark of womanliness in Mary Rogers, had she shown slight possibilities of regeneration, Gov. C. J. Bell, of Vermont, might have interfered. The murder was as brutal as that of Mrs. Martha Place, who hacked her jealous daughter to pieces because of jealousy in Brooklyn. Gov. Roosevelt declined to interfere and save her from electrocution in March of 1899.

Mrs. Rogers killed her husband, Marcus Rogers, in order that she might possess herself of $600, his life insurance, and marry another man. The murder was committed in Bennington, on August 12, 1902, by the administration of chloroform. The circumstances leading up to the murder breathe of foul deceit, cunning and a viciousness inconceivable in a woman.

Mary Rogers was deeply loved by her husband. Tiring of life with this quiet, unpretentious man, she left him. In her unfortunate life that followed in Bennington, she met a youth, barely seventeen years old, by the name of Leon Perham, a half-breed Indian, who became enamored of her. Perham wanted to marry her. Mrs. Rogers had no mind for that, but kept Perham dangling by her side.

Mrs. Rogers fell in love with a well known citizen of Bennington, who, however, was not aware of her passion for him. As a woman of the street she knew she could not win him, and in her simple way thought that once in possession of her husband's $600 life insurance money she would become an object of devotion and attention. With the thought came the plan to do away with Rogers, whom she had left. Rogers, in spite of her life of shame, had oftentimes sent word to his wife to come to him and he would forgive and forget the past. His strong love for her and his willingness to forgive were his undoing. She entered into a conspiracy with Perham, who was her willing tool, being led to believe that she would marry him.

Rogers was a powerful man and his end had to be accomplished by cunning and deceit. She wrote that she was ready to come back; wanted to come back and would he forgive her. Leon Perham turned State's evidence and on the stand gave testimony, a recital such as has rarely been heard in the courts of law.

According to Perham Mrs. Rogers had written to her husband, from whom she was estranged, asking him to meet her at 9:30 at night. After the meeting and pretended reconciliation Leon led the way into Morgan's grove, and by a winding path to the river. A great stone wall separated the grove from the river bank. The distance from the wall to the bank was less than half a dozen feet.

May and I walked along with Rogers until we came to a break in the wall," said Leon. "She went through and we followed. It was cold and I had on a big overcoat. I spread this out on the ground and all three of us sat down. We were only a few feet from the edge of the river.

"May said she had a new trick with a rope.

"He laughed. May laughed too, and drew out a piece of clothesline. Then she said she'd bet she could tie me so that I couldn't get loose.

"I'll bet you can't tie me," said Rogers.

"She tied my hands loosely, and I broke away. She tried it again and I broke away again.

"Try it on him," I said.

"I'll bet you can't tie me," said Rogers.

"He was as strong as an ox. May tied him and tried to tie him tight but he just gave a shake and broke away. She tried it a second time and he broke loose without any trouble. She was getting worried. She tried it a third time and when he broke loose again I saw that she couldn't tie him.

"Let me do it," I told her.

"I took the rope—a piece of clothesline. I said to Rogers:

"Kneel down and put your hands behind you."

"He thought it was for fun and knelt down. I tied his hands behind him and he struggled but could not get loose. His back was towards May.

"I gave her a signal and she drew the vial of chloroform and the handkerchief from her bosom. She poured a few drops on her handkerchief—not very much—and put her arms around his neck. Suddenly she drew his head back in her lap. The move threw him on his hands, which were behind him, so he was doubly helpless. Then she put the handkerchief to his nose. He sputtered. Suddenly she empties the vial on the handkerchief, completely saturating it. He began to struggle.

"May, what does this mean?" he asked, heaving his body. "What does it mean?"

"Jump on his legs," she said.

"I jumped on his legs to hold him. May had him gripped around the neck and pressed the handkerchief against his nose. His struggles were terrible. He threw me off as if I had been a kitten. He got one hand free and used it to help himself.

"But May clung to him and never once did the handkerchief get away from his nose. She had the grip of a tiger. He struggled and flung himself and her on the ground, and every time I came near him a heave of his legs or his free arm would throw me off.

"While he struggled, his breath was deeper. Suddenly he became more quiet, and in a moment he was limp. May clung to him, even after he was quiet, pressing the chloroform soaked handkerchief down over his face. When all was over she got up."

The body was rolled into the river. A note was left, purporting to have been written by Rogers, that he had drowned himself. Mrs. Rogers' unceasing haste in her efforts to collect the life insurance and other damning circumstances led to her arrest and indictment. Perham confessed and was sent to Windsor prison for life.

Mrs. Rogers was found guilty on December 22, 1903, and she was sentenced to be hanged on the first Friday in last February. She was thrice reprieved by Governor Bell, the second reprieve expiring last June, when counsel for the woman made an appeal to the United States Federal court to have certain legal questions reviewed by the Supreme court at Washington. The third reprieve expired today.

Mary Rogers was 22 years old and little more than 19 when she killed her husband.

SHOTS FIRED AS WEHRLES PASSED

WAS AN ATTEMPT MADE TO MURDER THE NEWARK. FOUNDRYMAN?

Foreman Held Up by Men But Released—Threats Made Against Employees.

The constant agitation in the Wehrle strike situation was added to Thursday evening by what may be considered an attempt on the lives of the managers of the company.

At 5:30 Thursday evening as Messrs. William and August Wehrle, Arthur Pratt and another gentleman of the Wehrle offices, were passing the corner of Union and West Main streets in autos, four revolver shots were fired, from a group of men at this point, in rapid succession. It could not be ascertained whether or not the shots were fired at any of the passing party.

Shortly before this occurrence a foreman of the scratching department was held up by a band of men and it is claimed that one of the party struck at him, but another man called to let him go as he was "all right."

It is also learned that on Wednesday a large party of men stopped three of the employees, William J. and Moses W. Eccleston, and Richard Andres, threatening to kill them if they returned to work.

An Order Mistimed.

A celebrated continental specialist to whom time was literally money and who was possessed of a fiery temper made it a rule that all patients should undress before entering his consulting room so as not to waste any of his valuable time. One day a meek looking little man entered with all his clothes on. "What do you mean by coming in like that?" said the doctor in a rage.

"Go and strip at once."

"But I—I've no time to waste!" yelled the doctor, and the poor man left the room in haste. When his turn came he re-entered the room. "Now, then," said the doctor, "that's better. What can I do for you?"

Notable Women

Ella Flagg Young, Chicago's Normal School Principal.

Chicago more than any other great American city has been just to women engaged in educational work. Three ladies, alike famous for philanthropy and common sense, are members of its school board. One of the three, Jane Addams, is chairman of the committee on school management, a post only less honorable and responsible than that of the president of the board itself.

This year Chicago's normal school has a woman principal, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Ph. D. A strong, wise, noble woman is Mrs. Young, wrapped heart and soul in the teacher's work. The pay attached to the principalship is $5,000 a year. There are rewards for women who reach the top in the pedagogical profession. "To succeed the teacher must know something of the joy of living," says Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Young has written educational monographs that are good for her sister teachers to read. She received her education in the Chicago schools, from primary to university. Her teaching life has also been passed there. The falsity and foolishness of the spiteful old charge that women will not serve under feminine superintendents are refuted in Chicago by the Ella F. Young club of women principals. Mrs. Young was for some years district superintendent of schools, afterward a professor in the educational department of the Chicago university, rounding off a distinguished career as the first woman principal of a normal school for both sexes in any great city of the world.

A Woman County Treasurer.

In Idaho, where women have full suffrage, Bingham county has a lady, Mrs. Adelia B. Scott, for its treasurer. In this official capacity Mrs. Scott has within the past year disbursed $350,000 of county money, with never a mistake or a shortage. The feminine county treasurer's husband is a prominent business man of Idaho Falls, and he is proud to have a wife so capable.

Mrs. Scott was born in Illinois, lived for a time variously in Iowa, Colorado and Kansas and finally settled in Idaho for good. For five years she was clerk of the school board of Idaho Falls, then was elected justice of the peace, served two terms and was next appointed police judge. She is Republican in politics. She finds women do not follow their special political party so closely as men do, but are more apt to vote for the best man, whichever side he is on.

Lona Dare, Corn Farmer.

A young Indiana girl, Lona Dare, only fourteen years old, last summer took care of a five acre field of corn, herself doing all the work upon it except just breaking up the ground to begin. She raised five acres of corn last year, and such good care does she take of her crop that it clears her $50 an acre.

Young Miss Dare was graduated early in the summer of this year from the public school of Walkerton, Ind., and immediately passed from the schoolroom to her little farm and took up her work. In addition to the five acres of corn this season, she has raised half an acre of potatoes and two acres of pickles. What country girl of fourteen or any other age can beat that?

Lona Dare seems a born farmer. She takes especial delight in keeping the soft earth free from weeds. She has a natural fondness for farm animals and consequently a natural power to manage them.

Women as Forest Guides.

As a natural result of the humbug of wealthy women who now go camping and hunting, the woman woodsman and guide has come into existence. She is needed in hunting parties where ladies are. In the Maine woods are three women guides who are experts in hunting, fishing and canoeing and who know the forest trails as the red men of old did. These women are Mrs. J. S. Freese of the Penobscot river region, Miss Cornelia T. Crosby of the town of Phillips and Miss Ethel Harlow of Dead River. Miss Crosby is also a writer on woodland sports. Her nom de plume is Fly Rod.

TOLERATED

But Not Wanted, By the Episcopal Church as Catholics Excommunicated in Omaha.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—The Episcopal church does not want the Roman Catholics who have been thrown out of their church for rebellion against ecclesiastical authority. The Living Church, in its current number, makes this plainly apparent in discussing the Omaha affair. The paper says:

"We hope it may not be true that the Episcopal church is to become the dumping ground for certain persons who have been excommunicated in Omaha by the Roman Catholic bishop for participating in the sacrilegious marriage of a divorced person. The excommunicated parties may well be given to understand that while they might be tolerated they are certainly not wanted as communicants. When all bishops and all priests become so impervious to considerations of wealth and social position on the part of sinners that the discipline of the church becomes a thing to be respected by them there will be less cause to deplore the vast gulf between the professions of the Christian church and the actions of Christian people.

To Babies But Wealthy Philanthropist Failed to Marry—He is Now Sued.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—Levi Dewell, one of the most prominent Hebrews of this city, head of the Pittsburg brokerage company, and brother of Mrs. J. M. Gusk, founder of the Gusk Orphanage Asylum, and known as a Jewish philanthropist, all over the United States, was sued yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Mildred Morrow, a young and pretty widow, who resides in the East End, for $50,000 damages for breach of promise. Mrs. Morrow is the mother of three children. In her suit she says:

"For a year and a half the defendant, a single man, has been paying court to the plaintiff and on or about October 16, 1904, proposed marriage and was accepted."

"The defendant gave the plaintiff an engagement ring in December, 1904, and from that time until the present has visited her from three to four nights a week, has nursed her children and acted in the capacity of a father to them, helped them to trim their Christmas tree, has given flowers, candy and other presents to the plaintiff, mingled with all the members of her family, has taken her to theatres, carnivals, car and vehicle riding, to restaurants and other public places, and has held himself out to her family and friends as her affianced lover. "The plaintiff gave up her home at great expense and at his solicitation and secured and furnished a house, preparing a wedding tresson, and was at all times ready and willing to contract marriage with the defendant, but he, from time to time, offered a plausible excuse for postponements until during November, 1905, when he refused to carry out the terms of the engagement."

Death For Assassins.

Hermit Banker Cremated.

Warsaw, N. Y., Dec. 8.—James L. Bloodget, the hermit banker of Hermitage, Wyoming county, was burned to death in his house, which burned to the ground. He was estimated to be worth a million dollars. He was a graduate of Yale college in the class of 1850. It is believed the fire caught from an overheated stove.

TROOPS REVOLT ELSEWHERE

Massacre Said to Have Taken Place at Kieff in Which Sixteen Hundred Persons Were Killed—Count Witte at the Mercy of the Workmen. Financial Crash Likely.

St. Petersburg, Wednesday, Dec. 6.—Runs on banks and demand for foreign exchange were accelerated by circulars which the strikers and revolutionary organizations are spreading broadcast. At the ministry of finance it is estimated that about $50,000,000 has thus far been withdrawn from the state bank. The balance of gold in the treasury and abroad now stands at $586,500,000 and the outstanding paper totals $553,500,000, leaving the government a margin of legally issuable paper of about $15,000,000. The officials perfectly understand the character of the assault on the credit. At the ministry of finance it was stated that the situation of the government has not greatly changed, financially or economically.

Public confidence in governmental ability to weather the growing storm is waning fast. Premier Witte seems powerless to cope with the new elements of danger which the revolution is raising on every hand. New mutinies among the troops are constantly reported and the lawlessness in the country is increasing. Whenever the dreaded workmen's organizations present a united front the premier is compelled to strike his colors. It is estimated that 8,000 persons have been killed at Moscow since the troubles began.

While Count Witte's cabinet stands there will still be hope for Russia, but when it disappears the deluge will begin. Even now the dark clouds are visibly gathering. The peasants clamor for land, but they will not hear of disrespect for the emperor. A large percentage of the workmen also are incensed against the strike organizers and the revolutionists and in some cases against the Jews.

The strikers secure news from interior towns. According to these dispatches the mutineers have seized the arsenal at Ekaterinodar and secured 10,000 rifles, which have been distributed at Ekaterinodar and Novorossiysk. It is also said that a revolt has broken out at Elizabetopol, and that insurrectionary troops are masters at Novorossiysk. The situation at Kieff is described as being an extremely serious one. Some accounts say that a massacre has taken place in which 1,500 persons were killed.

At Kharkoff it is reported that 5,000 soldiers have agreed not to fire on the people, and at Rostoff, the Third Grenadier artillery, consisting of 400 men, has held a meeting and formulated service demands. Similar action, it is rumored, has been taken by the military engineers at Odessa and by troops in several places in the Baltic provinces.

The declaration of martial law in Livonia is due principally to agrarian troubles. Large bands of peasants are marching and pillaging. It is reported that Dorpat is in flames. A stringent law to prevent agitation for political strikes and the spread of propaganda prejudicial to the discipline of the army and navy is about to be issued. The election law is not expected to be finally completed until next week.

Would Save Constitution. Philadelphia, Dec. 8.—Miss Margaret Parnell Stewart and Miss Frances R. Stewart, two granddaughters of Commodore Charles Stewart, who commanded the Constitution, sent a telegram to the secretary of the navy protesting against using the old frigate for a target. They are here on a visit. They added the signature of their sister, Miss Elizabeth Tudor Stewart of New York, where the three reside with their mother. They are first cousins of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, leader of the Irish home rule party in the British parliament.

Jerome Requests Report. New York, Dec. 8.—Attention was directed to the possibility of criminal action, growing out of the investigation of life insurance methods, by a visit paid by District Attorney Jerome to the executive committee while it was holding its hearing in the city hall. Mr. Jerome said that he wanted to find out when he could get possession of a copy of the report of the committee. Chairman Armstrong already has said that he hopes to have it ready for the legislature when it meets next January.

Prison Chaplain Dead. Laporte, Ind., Dec. 8.—Rev. Harry L. Henderson, chaplain of the Indiana state prison and well known nationally among those interested in corrections and charities, died of tuberculosis. He served through the Spanish-American war, and was recognized as an authority on the workings of convict and penitentiary laws.

APPEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Panama Canal Appropriation Cut to Eleven Millions and Put Through the House—Campaign Contributions a Senate Theme—Joint Statehood Bill Introduced.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Two sessions of the senate committee on foreign relations were held for the purpose of hearing a report concerning the administration of customs affairs in Santo Domingo from Colonel George C. Colton, an American designated by President Roosevelt and appointed by President Morales to supervise the collections. Colonel Colton was called by the committee at the suggestion of Secretary Root. During his statement he said his entire salary was paid from the Dominican revenues. Upon being questioned, Colonel Colton admitted that he holds a position under the United States government and is connected with the Philippine Islands customs service, but that he is now on a furlough and is not drawing salary from this government. Democratic members of the committee directed their inquiries to show whether there is an effort on the part of this government to put into practice the provisions of the pending Santo Domingo treaty, under which the United States would undertake the control of Dominican revenues. It is claimed that an attempt is being made to put the provisions of the treaty into effect, even though rejected by the senate. Colonel Colton said so far as he knew this had not been the case, but that there is a sentiment in Santo Domingo for the ratification of the treaty by the best class of citizens.

The subject of campaign contributions by insurance companies occupied most of the time of the senate. It came up in connection with Mr. Tillman's resolution calling for an investigation of national banks' aid in politics and was exploited by the South Carolina senator in a speech of some length. The address dealt with the president's recommendations for the punishment of bribery in connection with Senator Platt's testimony before the New York investigating committee and with various other pertinent matters. The resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to report whether the reports of the national examiners show that the banks have made campaign contributions in recent years was adopted at the close of Mr. Tillman's remarks. A large number of bills were introduced, among them being the joint statehood bill.

ELEVEN MILLIONS

Appropriated For Work on Canal. Bond Provision.

Washington, Dec. 8.—An appropriation of $11,000,000 was voted toward construction of the Panama canal. The amount was a compromise between the $16,500,000 carried in the bill under consideration and an estimate of something over $6,000,000 recommended by Mr. Williams, the Democratic leader, to carry on the work until the middle of January. Mr. Hepburn, in charge of the bill, suggested that something over $11,000,000 would carry on the work until March. There was no intention manifest to delay the work, the only argument for cutting down the original estimate being that closer scrutiny might be had of the estimate. The bill was amended in accordance with suggestions by Mr. Mann of Illinois, directing the president to require annual reports from construction officers covering all details of the work; requiring such employees to give congress any information it may desire, and restricting all expenditures to money appropriated by congress and to that received by the operation of the property of the Panama railroad. Otherwise the bill was not amended, and contains, beside the appropriation, a provision removing a tax disability against the proposed bonds to be issued for the construction of the canal, thus placing the bonds on a footing with other government bonds as available for security for national bank circulation and to reimburse the treasury for the money appropriated in the bill.

Thieves Mar Angelo Bas-relief. Florence, Italy, Dec. 8.—Thieves entered the Church of St. Lawrence, in the village of Cassolina Torri, and tried with the aid of chisels to remove from a wall a beautiful bas-relief representing the twelve apostles, the work of Michael Angelo. The effort was not successful, but the work has been badly defaced.

Killed by Falling Tree. St. Marys, O., Dec. 8.—Benjamin Ruvaldt of Washington township was killed by a falling tree. A limb struck him in the head, crushing his skull. He died within a few hours. Mr. Ruvaldt was 59 years old and leaves a widow.

Another Football Victim. Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 8.—Leo McNally, 24, who was injured in a football game between local teams in this city on Thursday night, is dead. McNally's back was broken in a mass play.

PROF. C. H. OULD HAS RESIGNED

TRINITY CHURCH ORGANIST IS NOW IN VERY POOR HEALTH.

It is Probable He Will Return to England—His Successor Has Not Yet Been Chosen.

Prof. C. Hopkins Ould, on Wednesday tendered his resignation as organist of Trinity Episcopal church, this city, the same to take effect at once.

Prof. Ould, who came to this city in September, from his home in England to accept the position of organist in Trinity church on the 19th of that month, has been in ill health almost constantly since his arrival in this country. This is due to change of customs, of diet, hours and so forth.

Professor Ould while here has won a large number of friends and he has certainly proved himself a musician of great ability. His plans for the future cannot be learned as yet, as he is confined to his room with nervous trouble. It is supposed, however, that he will return to England. He has been for some time under the care of Dr. O. P. Sook.

The successor of Prof. Ould has not yet been appointed although for the present Miss Mary Neal will preside at the organ.

PIECE OF PIPE IMBEDDED IN HEAD

WAS SOURCE OF THIS MAN'S SUPPOSED INSANITY AT KENTON.

Operation Restores His Mind—Mysterious and Remarkable
Ohio Case.

Kenton, O., Dec. 8.—A piece of gas pipe more than three inches long was taken from the head of Arthur Staat, aged 30, at the State Hospital for the Insane at Toledo a few days ago, according to a letter received by Probate Judge Neeley from Supt. Dr. H. H. Tobey, of the hospital, thereby removing the cause of the man's insanity. Staat was committed to the hospital from the reformatory at Mansfield, where he was sent two years ago on a charge of burglarizing Wm. Dadds' store at Ridgeway. At the time he was taken to the reformatory his mind seemed weak, and during the last few weeks the malady grew to such an extent that 10 days ago he was adjudged insane.

Young Staat claimed while at the reformatory that he had a piece of gas pipe in his head, but this was supposed to be his hallucination. People laughed at the man who was all of this time in much misery. Many joked about his "pipe dream" and passed by his pleadings as insanity. Finally he began to keep the left side of his face and head bound up, but the only surface indication was a sore about the size of a quarter which was thought to be due to a decayed bone. But neglect resulted on account of the supposed unaccountability of the man's statements. The sight of his left eye was almost gone by this time.

On Wednesday the physicians at the state hospital performed an operation and removed from the left side of the man's head a piece of gas pipe or five three and one-fourth inches long, an inch wide and one-fourth of an inch thick. The young man was greatly weakened by the operation, but may now recover his mind completely, for it is seen that he was not as insane as at first judged.

How the pipe came to be in Staat's head is more or less mysterious. He has refused to talk about it except to state that he was in an explosion a few years ago and was thus injured. What the nature of the explosion was and where it occurred has never been stated.

SATURDAY'S SHOW.

A musical farce comedy said to be of unusual excellence, will be the attraction at the Auditorium, both Saturday matinee and night, the management out of the sparkling comedy having been fortunate in securing the three act play, "My Wife's Family," the combined work of Craig-o-North castle, where the of Hal Stephens and Harry Linton, view of the rich give king and lady prolific and successful writers of that Henrietta, who despise each other on style of entertainment. This merry account of their social difference, concoction of fun, music and amusing come together and exchange the keener-frivolity, was greeted by warm praise and sort of caustic compliments, is wherever presented last season, as the most amusing comedy scene jolliest, cleanest and liveliest of comedies seen in the musical world, a scene the great comedy quartet, Miss constant creator of laughter, that is Coghlan, Lynn Pratt, Minna Phillips simply irresistible. The comedy appears to all that is refined, the book is not of the forced kind, while the musical numbers are all of the jingling, whistling order. The company presenting "My Wife's Family" was selected for each person's natural ability to assume the various characters assigned to them, with the result one of the best drilled organizations on the road today. Clever comedians, pretty girls and a whole ensemble well high perfect in every way. The costuming, electrical and stage effects are correct in every detail. The engagement of "My Wife's Family" should prove to be an artistic and financial success.

and sudden revulsion to high barometer. High northerly gales and cold wave. Throughout the middle parts of December it will be wise to figure on high to dangerous gales on the north Atlantic high seas.

Greatly increased storm conditions will appear about the 21st. The barometer will be unsettled and falling all over the western sections. A warm spell for December will follow resulting in general rains from Friday the 22d to Monday the 25th. Not far from Christmas day the storms will culminate in heavy rain and wind with thunder storms in southern states, turning to snow and blizzards immediately behind the storms of rain and winking up with a very high barometer, fierce northerly gales, and a sweeping cold wave.

The next storm period is central on the 27th, 28th and 29th. The indications are that generally unsettled weather, with desultory storms and storminess, will follow the last regular period, and that cold clearing weather will prevail as the month and year go out. Our general advice and caution for December are, that the winter solstice period, with a Venus period added, constitute ample warning of many hard, winter storms, with severe and disagreeable changes from warm to extreme cold.

WHAT HE WANTED.

New York Salesman Did Not Find It Until He Reached Newark.

Irving Johnson, a drummer who is well known to many of our merchants was in town yesterday, stopping at the Warden, where the Advocate man heard him tell a few new stories that he had collected on his last trip.

"I am glad to see," said Mr. Johnson, "that Newark is right up to date in cigars as well as in other things. I have been hunting for a Wadsworth Bros. Chicos in the last half dozen towns, and did not find one until I went into J. W. Collins & Son's this morning. That cigar is all right. I can tell you, and although it cost only 5c, yet I push them out to my customers, knowing that they will think it is a 10c or two for a quarter."

The Wadsworth Bros. Chicos are an all Havana filled cigar that smokes just as a cigar ought from start to finish, burning evenly with a long, clean, firm ash.

Its flavor appeals to the lover of high grade cigars, and its price to all sensible smokers. Dec 1-8-15.

THE STORY OF VINOL

By Frank D. Hall, of Newark.

"Our experience with medicines extends over many years. We have had ample opportunity to watch thousands of them and their results, and we can honestly say that we've never sold a medicine in our store that gives more universal satisfaction than does Vinol.

This is because Vinol possesses intrinsic merit, and we want everybody in Newark to know more about it, and why we stand behind it.

For centuries cod liver oil has been recognized as the grandest of all body-building agents for wasted human strength and vitality—yet on account of the disagreeable odor, taste and heavy indigestible elements, it invariably clogs the system, upsets the stomach and its virtue lost.

Now modern science has proved that the oil or greasy part has no value, either as a food or medicine, and the medicinal elements of which there are about fifty different kinds in the cod's liver represent all the tonic, body-building and curative powers of this famous old remedy.

After twenty years of study two eminent French chemists discovered a way to separate all these medicinal elements from the oil and livers and give to modern medicine all the valuable curatives of the cod's liver without a drop of the useless oil, and thus made Vinol.

Vinol, therefore, is guaranteed to contain in a highly concentrated form all of these medicinal curative and body-building elements actually taken from fresh cods' livers, without oil, and for this reason it is fast superseding old fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions.

As a body-builder and strength creator for old people, weak women, puny children, for the anaemic and after sickness, and for all pulmonary troubles we honestly believe it has no equal." Frank D. Hall, Druggist.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is in fact the property of the publisher, and that the publisher is entitled to the copyright in it, and that the publisher is entitled to the copyright in it, and that the publisher is entitled to the copyright in it.

We are of the opinion that this allegation is not clearly and accurately stated, and that the result that has been reached, the Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

Three of the 200 "Rexall" Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine, and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It is the foundation on which Mucuna-Tone is built. Gentian combines in high degree the tonic powers of all the known "biters," with none of the disadvantages applying to them.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable. In whatever part of the body the inflamed or diseased condition of the mucous membrane exists, the use of Cubebs has been recommended by the best physicians for many generations.

Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its necessary laxative properties.

The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point, gradually restores and rebuilds the diseased tissues to their former health and strength, promotes digestion and creates a normal appetite. Bottle, 50c.

"Rexall" Remedies are found only in the stores of druggists affiliated with The United Drug Company—only one in each town and each backs up this "Rexall" guarantee printed on every package: "This preparation is guaranteed to give satisfaction. Mr. Bowser as A Politician

He Would Try to Run For Alderman Despite Mrs. B.'s Vehement Protests.

COMMITTEE VISITS HIM

He Tries Out Wine and Cigars, but Weakens When $500 Is Demanded For Campaign.

[Copyright, 1905, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

WHEN Mr. Bowser reached home the other evening a strange man who had been loitering up and down the block for the last half hour was at the gate to meet him, and they had a talk of fifteen minutes before he entered the house.

"I am glad you've come," said Mrs. Bowser as she appeared to welcome him. "That man has been loitering around here until I was minded to telephone for the police. I'll wager anything that he's a rascal. What on earth were you talking with him about?"

"You are entirely mistaken in the man," replied Mr. Bowser. "I've known him for several months, and I know he's all right."

"Oh, then he was hanging around here to see you, was he? How much did he strike you for?"

"In the first place, he is not that sort, and in the next I object to your using slang. The man's name, if you must know, is Thompson, and he has a good deal to do with the politics of this ward."

"It's what you call a ward heeler, is he?"

"Madam, we will close this conversation right here and now," stily replied Mr. Bowser as he led the way to dinner.

"There were three other fellows of the same kidney hanging around some time ago. Are the four a committee to call on you?"

Mr. Bowser began using his knife and fork and refused to say another

"I CAN SAY WITHOUT EGOTISM THAT I AM WELL AND FAVORABLY KNOWN."

word till the meal was finished. Then he pronounced up and down the sitting room three or four minutes and halted before her to say:

"The citizens of this precinct are not satisfied with the alderman. Nine out of ten taxpayers believe him crooked. They want an honest man as a candidate at the next election."

"That means they want you," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"As a matter of fact and speaking without conceit, it does. I can say without egotism that I am well and favorably known."

"And you are going to be goose enough to go into politics again. I thought you had a dose of it two or three years ago."

"You are speaking to me, are you?" he asked after a long glare at her.

"Certainly I am. A committee came here and made a fool of you, and you know it. You can no more be elected alderman than you can fly. All these deadbeats want out of you is money. They know you are a soft mark."

"I can't be elected! Me a soft mark?" shouted Mr. Bowser at the top of his voice. "Woman, you are going too far! Be careful how you crowd me to the dead line."

"No one is crowding you, but you know you have no business in politics. What do you want to be an alderman for?"

"Stop right there. We don't discuss this matter another minute. Don't speak another word. After I have concluded my business with the committee this evening you and I can have ten minutes' conversation in regard to the divorce and the amount of alimony. Ten minutes will be enough. No law made by man can expect a husband to stand such talk from a wife. Madam, will you oblige me by going to your room and remaining there for the next hour? When the moment arrives I will summon you."

"And you'll let these word hawks work you for fifteen or twenty dollars?"

Mr. Bowser stood in his tracks and literally gasped for breath, and he was pinching himself to see if he were alive when she passed him and went upstairs. Next moment the doorbell rang, and Mr. Bowser opened the door to admit four men. Each and every one of them would have been arrested on sight if even in the alley by a policeman, but he was not critical. When they had got seated in the library the man that had talked with Mr. Bowser at the gate took command of things by saying in a hoarse whisper:

"Mr. Bowser, it is usual on such occasions as this for the prospective candidate to tender wine and cigars."

He meant prospective, but his slip was good naturedly passed by, and the wine and cigars were forthcoming.

"This is the sort of man I like to meet," observed another member of the committee as he snatched his lips. "Mr. Bowser is no man to bring you a drink of water and a bite of plug tobacco. Say, fellows, we'll give him 300 majority."

"Yai Yai Hear! Hear!" shouted the other two.

"Now for business," continued the chairman. "Mr. Bowser, we want an honest man for alderman in this end of the ward."

Mr. Bowser bowed.

"You are an honest man."

Mr. Bowser bowed again.

"You are sure to get there by at least 300 majority. After one term as alderman you will be asked to become a candidate for mayor. After that you can become governor or go to congress."

Mr. Bowser bowed for the third time, and following his bow one of the committee remarked:

"Say, old man, we have finished the wine, as you see. Shoot another bottle along."

Mr. Bowser hung in the wind for a moment, but finally fetched another bottle. When the men had a drink all around the chairman wiped off his chin and said:

"Yes, it will be a walkover for us, but at the same time there will be some necessary expenses to be met."

"Of course, and he's the chicken to meet them," added one of the others. "Nothing mean about Bowser, you know."

"For he's a jolly good fellow, for he's a jolly good fellow, for he's a jolly good fellow, and nobody will deny."

"Yes, necessary expenses, Mr. Bowser," softly continued the chairman, "and of course you are prepared to meet them."

"I don't believe in buying my election."

"Oh, no, no, no! There will be the printing of the tickets, your share toward the fireworks and a few other things. You can place $500 in my hands, and I will see to these trifles for you."

Mr. Bowser sat in his chair like a stone man.

"By thunder, Bill, but the old cock is going to bolt!" exclaimed one of the committee as he brought his fist down on the table.

"I told you what a stingy old bloke he was—ya, on such a man!"

"I don't say that the $500 will carry you through, but it will make a good beginning," said the seductive chairman. "My friends here—"

Mr. Bowser rose up.

"What's the bloke a-goin' to do, Bill?" asked the man who had spoken before.

"Dunno, but he looks like a flunker."

"So he do, blast his old bald head!"

Mr. Bowser slowly raised his right arm and pointed to the half open door.

"What is it?" asked three men in chorus.

"Go out!"

"What! The old cock turns us out?"

"Mr. Bowser," began the chairman, "this end of the ward needs and is determined to have an honest man, and we are here this evening to—"

"Git!"

"We are here this evening to—"

"Git git git!"

The committee got. They went slowly and grudgingly, and they called him names and made threats, but they went out. Mr. Bowser maintained his dignity and kept his temper until he had shut the door on them, and then he turned and tore a picture off the wall and slammed it on the floor and jumped up and down, puffing like a locomotive on an up grade.

"Well?" asked Mrs. Bowser, who was seated on the stairs and had heard all.

But he had no reply. He had gone into politics and gone out again.

THEIR WEDDING DAY

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE

Copyright, 1905, by E. C. Parcells

Impelled by some whimsical notion, the girl turned abruptly and discarded the neat blue walking suit she had just donned for a heap of billows, lustrous apparel that lay spread out over the bed. Afterward she contemplated her reflection critically in the oval mirror of her dressing table, noting the details with some curiosity.

No, her three years' absence on another continent had made very little difference beyond, perhaps, intensifying each feature a more trifle. The sun tints of her hair had deepened to a more metallic gold, the blue of her eyes to misty violet, and her mouth, red, finely lined, dropped a bare fraction at the corners—that was all.

With a final wistful glance at the straight young figure in its white silken loveliness, she turned and ran down the stairs as fast as she could, pinning her hat on as she went.

Half an hour's brisk walking brought her to the entrance of the park. A few minutes later she found herself completely hemmed in by an unfamiliar wilderness of trees and brambles. She paused and looked about her desperately. On either side was a formidable tangle of thorny hedge, with mass upon mass of impenetrable shrubbery everywhere ahead. Three years had made a material difference in things at least, she reflected.

After a moment's rest on one of the benches she got up again, more than ever determined on her quest. At the end of a harassing hour she stood on familiar ground at last, a tumult of emotions surging all through her being as recollections crowded up thick and fast.

There was the same old log upon which they had sat on that eventful day—the day, the very hour of their betrothal—now crumbling to decay, but the very same nevertheless.

Lifting her skirts, all sagged and limp with dew, she picked her way side of the log. In an instant his face lit up only to cloud swiftly, while a look of pain made his clean, clear features look almost sharp. He sat down and dropped his face in his hands with a sort of hopelessness too entire for expression. After a little he lifted his head wearily and stared straight ahead of him at nothing at all. Then, all at once, he started, paled and jumped to his feet, every nerve quivering. On the soft turf exactly in front of him were footprints—a woman's footprints! And a bit further on lay a tiny scrap of lace, vaguely exhalant of a subtle odor—her favorite perfume.

Gordon stooped quickly and possessed himself of the handkerchief. In one corner were the initials he already expected to see there. He crushed it against his lips with a passionate rush of tenderness, and a wonderful light came into his eyes. "Dearest of all women," he mused radiantly, "I shall go to the ends of creation to find you if it takes me all the eternities to do it!"

The girl held her hands tightly over her heart, lest Gordon should hear his turbulent throbbing. Her teeth, caught unconsciously over her lip, left a clean row of pink indentations for a long time afterward.

As he turned to come past her she shrank back a bit and her foot slipped fatally. The next moment Gordon was bending over her, and his breath, coming in little quick jerks, lifted the fine hair from her temples in tiny gold wisps.

"I—I'm afraid it's going to be serious, Dick. I don't believe I can walk a bit." Quite involuntarily she had reverted to the old familiar title.

The world seemed to stop revolving for a minute. Then Gordon slipped a firm, strong arm about her and drew her toward him. "I am going to carry you," he said.

"But it's too far. You could never in the world get me home!"

"Less than a quarter of a mile from here is St. Luke's!"

She laughed a little unsteadily, trying to smother the catch of pain in her throat.

"Mr. Applegate is there right now. I saw him as I came along," he continued.

"But I dislike to trouble any one with—"

"The reverend gentleman will not, I assure you, object to being troubled in this way. He likes it. You see, it rather helps him to eke out an existence. Besides, it wouldn't be precisely fair, would it, to cheat the old fellow out of his legitimate fee?"

The girl averted her head suddenly and did not speak, but Gordon took heart of her silence and, bending, touched her blood-burnt cheeks with his lips. "You haven't forgotten what day this is, Emily?"

"I haven't forgotten," she responded in a little tremulous whisper, "it is—our wedding day."

And so it was.

Postage Stamp Gum.

When you lick a postage stamp you need not fear that the gum is something unclean. Postal gum is the best quality on the face of the earth. It is derived from dextrin, a product secured in the process of making starch from potatoes, corn and the cassava root. The starch from these vegetables is treated by roasting at a temperature of about 30 degrees at the first stage, causing it to turn into dextrin. Further changes make postal gum, and if the changes were carried to the limit the result would be grape sugar or glucose.

The best postal gum is that which contains the least unconverted starch and little glucose. When the material for making gum reaches the bureau of engraving and printing it looks much like flour except in color. It comes in sacks of 200 pounds each, and every consignment from the contractors is carefully inspected before using. It is subjected to microscopic examination and to chemical analysis, and all this is followed by a practical test—Kansas City Star.

A Tragic Capture.

One of the most industrious of the man thieves who recruited the famous regiment of giants for King Frederick William of Prussia was Baron Hompesch, whose many successes led him once to cast covetous eyes upon a very lengthy joiner. He ordered of the joiner a chest or cupboard which should be as long and broad as the worker himself. In due course the baron called round. The cupboard had been finished, but he protested that it was too small. This the carpenter denied and laid himself within it as proof of its dimensions. No sooner had he done so than servants of the baron clapped down the lid and had the giant prisoner. They carried him off to the court, but when the lid was opened instead of a giant there rolled out a corpse. The man had been stifled. In his anger the king sentenced the baron to death, but reprieved him when he wanted more giants.

News Speed in South Africa.

When Lord Wolseley during the Ashanti war crossed the Tush he found a white cord stretched from tree to tree along his route. It was a native fetish, copied from the British telegraph wire, which was believed to possess some sovereign magic virtue. But the native has his mysteries of his own, which the white man often proves unable to fathom. It is said that no one can understand how it happens that with such marvelous celerity news has traveled across the whole of South Africa. During the South African war, except where the telegraph was in operation, native news was always days ahead of official news.

The relief of Mafeking is said to have been known next day in Zululand and also 700 miles away in the heart of Cape Colony. Signals by fire and drum, messages conveyed by runners or cried from hilltop to hilltop, do not explain speed such as this.

The Struggle to CONTROL Railway Rates

THE contest over the question of railroad rates overtops in interest everything else up for discussion in the present congress, and bids fair to be the most exciting of any struggle witnessed in some time in the national halls of legislation. The battle may be said to have begun last winter, to have been continued during the recess of congress in the newspapers and on the rostrum, and now to be joined again where the contest must be fought out, at the national capital itself. The administration plan for a body vested with powers to make fair rates won a victory last winter in the house of representatives, where the bill bearing the names of Congressman Esch of Wisconsin and Congressman Townsend of Michigan passed by a large majority. Democrats uniting with Republicans in its support and only a few scattering votes being cast against it. When it went to the senate it encountered obstacles too great to be overcome at that time, and the Fifty-eighth congress went out of existence without enacting into law this most important measure. During the summer the friends of railway rate reform rallied their forces, and the railroads and the interests allied with them did the same. During the interval between the expiration of the Fifty-eighth congress and the assembling of the Fifty-ninth the senate committee on interstate commerce held sessions and took testimony, the interstate commerce commission made investigations with a view of aiding in the solution of the problem and the subject was discussed in the press, on the platform of Chautauqua assemblies and at other public gatherings.

As the Esch-Townsend measure did not become law the matter must be taken up anew from the beginning, and the assembling of the Fifty-ninth congress found the friends of railway rate reform eager to proceed with the enactment of the new bill. Messrs. Esch and Townsend are again the president's field marshals in the lower branch of congress.

In the senate the course of railway rate reform is beset with greater obstacles now, as it was in the previous session, owing to the strength of the railway element in that body. A bill has been prepared, with the aid of the interstate commerce commission, which is said to represent the ideas of the administration as to the kind of a law which would prove effective. Senator Foraker, who has all along opposed the president's idea of giving rate making powers to the interstate commerce commission, has prepared a bill expressing his own ideas of a conservative measure on this subject. He is one of the members of the senate interstate commerce committee, which has charge of bills on the subject of railway rates. The other members are Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, John Kean of New Jersey, Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa, Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, Joseph H. Millard of Nebraska, Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, Anselm J. McLaurin of Mississippi, Edward W. Carmack of Tennessee, Murphy J. Foster of Louisiana and Francis G. Newlands of Nevada. Senator Elkins is chairman, and he made his fortune largely through railroads and is counted as in sympathy with their side of the question. The foremost antagonist of railway rate legislation in the senate, however, is Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, who for years has been the mainstay of corporation influence in the upper branch of congress. Lincoln Steffens, the magazine writer, whose investigations of the "system" have been carried on in many states, has devoted much attention to the operations of Senator Aldrich, who, he says, owns the islands close to H. R. Rogers, vice president of the Standard Oil company, and is an all powerful factor in the affairs of high finance. Senator Aldrich is sixty-four years old, he has been in politics for thirty-five years and has risen from alderman to senator. He entered the house of representatives in 1879 and was promoted to the senate in 1884. He is an expert in all matters relating to finance and has for years been chairman of the senate finance committee. Though past three score, the senator is well preserved and athletic and devotes much time to golf. He has a private course on his Providence estate, and it has some times been claimed that he is the champion golf player of congress.

Senator Nelson W. Aldrich.

MERCURY MAKES WRECKS NOT CURES

Thousands who have had their health ruined by Mercury testify that it makes wrecks instead of cures in the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison. While it may mask the disease in the system for awhile, when the treatment is left off the trouble returns with renewed violence, combined with the disastrous effects of this powerful mineral. Mercury, and Potash, which is also a common treatment for Contagious Blood Poison, eat out the lining of the stomach and bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia, cause the teeth to decay, make spongy, tender gums, affect the bones and muscles, and leave its victims complete physical wrecks. Another effect of this treatment is mercurial rheumatism, the worst and most hopeless form of this disease. There is but one certain, reliable antidote for this destructive poison, and that is S. S. S. It is the only medicine that is able to go into the blood and cure the disease permanently. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up anything, but so completely drives out the poison that no signs of it are ever seen again. S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, and while curing Contagious Blood Poison, will drive out the effects of any mineral treatment. We offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Book with instructions for self-treatment and any medical advice wished furnished without charge.

Laugh It Off.

WHEN you're suffering reversion till it seems naught but diversion is the only thing you need to keep your weary mind intact.
Try a little healthy laughter. Good old fashioned, jolly laughter. And you'll find it bully medicine—a tonic, for a fact.

When you can't make any headway And each day seems like a dead day And the thumbs begin to poster till your nerves are shattered, racked, Stop a bit; get busy quaffing From the bottle labeled "Laughter"—Get your fill and then start over—it's a tonic, for a fact.

Are you grumpy? Are you grouchy? Do you feel like saying "Ouchy"? Every time some one gets near you? Have you lost the thing called tact? Try a cup of sunny chaffing. Sweetened up with merry laughing—It's the best thing on the market for a tonic, for a fact.

A company which manufactures band instruments receives a large number of letters from green players, asking advice as to their difficulties. Several months ago this company sold a cornet to a man in Canada. As might have been expected, after he had played it for some time without removing the valves the action became stiff. He wrote to the manufacturer explaining the trouble and asking whether he should grease the valves. In answer he was told that it was the usual custom of cornet players when this difficulty occurred to remove the valves and put a little saliva upon them. To their astonishment the next week's mail brought the following letter:

Gentlemen—Kindly send me 5 cents' worth of saliva. I can't get it in the stores here. Inclosed find stamps in payment.

5213 Three Piece Circular Skirt, 22 to 30 Waist.
THREE PIECE CIRCULAR SKIRT 5213.

Perforated for Walking Length.

The circular skirt in all its variations is a pronounced favorite of the season and is always graceful and attractive. This one is among the newest and combines the circular portions with a narrow front gore, which is arranged to give the effect of a double box plait. This plait is stitched flat for a portion of its length, but falls free below, so providing both fashionable and becoming flare. In the illustration the material is gray Venetian cloth trimmed with bands of the material stitched with beading silk and finished with pointed ends, where ornamental buttons are attached, but all suiting and all skirting materials are appropriate and the model will be found equally desirable for the long skirt of dressy occasions and the short one of street wear. Also various trimmings might be suggested. Braid applied after the manner of the bands would be effective and plain cloth on rough makes one of the features of the season.

The skirt is made in three pieces and can be laid in inverted plaits at the back or finished in habit style.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 7 yards 27, 4 1-2 yards 44 of 4 1-4 yards 52 inches wide with 15 yards of banding to trim as illustrated.

The pattern 5213 is cut in sizes for a 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inch waist measure.

The Angel Child.

WHERE, oh, where is the little boy With the angel face and the fluffy hair,
The child who met me with shouts of joy
When the day was done and I turned from care?

He is gone, he is gone, the beautiful child Who used to clamber upon my knee And softly say as he sweetly smiled,
"Please, papa, now tell a story to me."

The light still gleams in the window when I journey home at the close of day, Weary from striving with eager men And laboring much for a little pay,
But the sweet-faced baby who at the door Stood ready to greet me with shouts of joy

Is waiting to hear my step no more— Ah, where is my innocent little boy?

Behold, where there where the turf is torn A score of giants who slog and slum, And each of them as a babe was born As innocent as a little lamb!
Each of the brutish ones gazing there May once have sat on his father's knee And gaudied a heart that was torn by care,
As my little one used to gladden me.

Ah, where is the child with the angel face And the gentle voice and the wee, soft hands? Behold him there as he takes his place And eagerly and half crouching stands! He has broken another man's heart today,
His shins are barked, and they've skinned his brow.

My sweet little boy has been taken away; He is getting his name in the papers now.

Lesson In Promptitude.

A Philadelphia lawyer was one day discoursing upon the importance of impressing upon the young mind the necessity for cultivating the virtues of regularity and precision.

"Early in life," said he, "I had this lesson imparted to me by my tutor. He was a Frenchman by birth. I can never forget the earnestness with which he used to descend upon the subject. 'For punctuality, young sir,' he would say, 'permit me to commend to you ze example of ze sun, which rises exactly at break of day, nevaire before, nevaire after.'—St. Louis Republic.

Caught.

"Did that lady make a complaint against that sneak thief for stealing her jewelry?"
"No. She said she'd rather lose it than explain what she was doing when he entered. She was gossiping over the back fence at the time."

"Well?"
"She was afraid she'd have to repeat the gossip in court."—Detroit Free Press.

In the Midst of It.

"Yes," said the young writer. "I've got pretty deep into my new novel now."

"Ah," remarked the friend, "the plot's thickening, eh?"
"Yes, perhaps that's it; at any rate I'm stuck."—Catholic Standard and Times.

"Yes, but he is not as good as Smeer."
"I have been told that Dobber draws the finest pen and ink sketches of anybody in the city."
"Yes, but Smeer is fine at drawing customers."—Dallas News.

Awful to Contemplate.

"Most of us seem to forget," said the ponderous person, "that actions speak plainer than words."
"Gracious!" exclaimed Hoppeck. "If they speak louder than my wife's words I want to keep on forgetting!"—Philadelphia Press.

ENGLISH PAPER

Tells of Sugar Loaf Monument Dedication at Granville—Copy Received in Granville.

A copy of the Bufo Free Press of Bufo St. Edmunds, England, directed to Mrs. Mary Case Minton, Granville, has been received by Mrs. Burton Case, and will be forwarded to Mrs. Minton at Granville, Mass. The paper contains the following regarding the monument erected on Sugar Loaf Hill to the memory of the pioneer settlers of Granville:

"Recently in the United States of America, Mrs. Mary Case Minton, descended from an early emigrant from North Walsham, erected a centennial memorial to the pioneer settlers of Granville, Ohio, which place, a hundred years ago, was founded by a colony from Granville, Mass., colonized by pioneers from East Anglia. At the interesting ceremony of unveiling the East Anglian banner in silk was draped on the face of the memorial, while above it lay folded the Stars and Stripes. The foundation was laid by the Right Worshipful, the Grand Master of Ohio, in the presence of His Excellency, the Governor of the State of Ohio, and other dignitaries. The memorial was erected at the suggestion of Mr. Horace W. Whayman, president of the Ohio Society of East Anglians.

"The handsome seal, newly cut, of the Granville Historical Society, Ohio, is likewise of especial interest as having for the subject of its first quarter the familiar three crowns on a shield and cross of the East Anglian symbol."

Why the Pullets Don't Lay.

The April and May hatched pullets should come into profit about October or November. It is safe, however, to say that the bulk of them do not. Why? The fault lies alone with the care of these birds received from start to finish. They cannot stand any setbacks and must be kept growing from the day they are hatched until they are placed in the laying quarters. There is no secret about the matter. At no time in their life must they be overworked. Plenty of room, so that they can have plenty of exercise, is not only desirable, but imperative. Pullets for profit should be kept tame. Wild scare birds never amount to much; the egg crop depends upon the amount of confidence and comfort the hen old or young possesses—Michigan K. Boyer in American Agriculturist.
